MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

MORRIS ROBINSON, President. Having been appointed agent for the above named institution, I am prepared to receive applications for insurance on life for one or more years, or for the duration of life. The advantages of the mutual principle above the heretofore more usual joint-stock companies are so great that it is only necessary to understand the principles of its operation to give a decided preference to the mutual plan. A treatise on the subject and forms of application for insurance can be had at my store on 7th street, immediately opposite the National Intelligencer office. C. S. FOWLER, Agent.

Dr. Christie's Galvanic Rings and Magnetic Fluid.

THIS remarkable invention, which has received the almost universal approbation of the medical profession of Great Britain, comprises an entirely new application of Galvanism, as a remedial agent by means of which the ordinary Galvanic Batteries, Electric and Magnetic Machines, &c. are entirely dispensed with, and the mysterious power of Galvanism applied without any of the objections which are inseparable from the general mode now in use.

The Galvanic Rings have been used with entire success in all cases of rheumatism, acute or chronic, applying to the head, face, or limbs; gout, tic-douloureux, toothache, bronchitis, vertigo, nervous or sick headache, indigestion, paralysis, palsy, epilepsy, fits, cramp, palpitation of the heart, apoplexy, stiffness of the joints, spinal complaints, lumbago, neuralgia, nervous tremors, dizziness of the head, pains in the chest and side, general debility, deficiency of nervous and physical energy, and all nervous disorders. In cases of confirmed dyspepsia, which is simply a nervous derangement of the digestive organs, they have been found equally successful. Their extraordinary effects upon the system must be witnessed to be believed, and as a certain preventive for the preceding complaints they are equally recommended. The rings are of different prices, being made of all sizes, and of various ornamental patterns, and can be worn by the most delicate female without the slightest inconvenience. In fact, the sensation is rather agreeable than otherwise.

THE GALVANIC BELTS, BRACELETS, BANDS, GARTERS, NECKLACES, &c. &c.—These articles are adapted to the waist, arms, wrists, limbs, ankles, or any part of the body with perfect convenience. The Galvanic Necklaces are used with greater benefit in cases of bronchitis or affections of the throat generally; also, in cases of nervous deafness; and with almost uniform success as a preventive for apoplexy, epileptic fits, and similar complaints.

Christie's Magnetic Fluid is used in connexion with the Galvanic Rings, and all their modifications. This composition has been pronounced by the French Chemists to be one of the most extraordinary discoveries of modern science. Full explanations and directions accompany it. The combined inventions are in every way perfectly harmless; they are at prices within reach of all, and the discoverer requests a fair trial, as a test of their surprising efficacy and permanent benefit.

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC STRENGTHENING PLASTERS.—These articles form another valuable application of the mysterious influence of Galvanism. They are an important adjunct to the genuine Galvanic Rings and their modifications, acting upon the same principle, but having the advantage of more local application. They are confidently recommended as a valuable addition in the speedy cure of rheumatism, acute or chronic, in all nervous complaints, and as a positive remedy in cases of pain and weakness in the chest or back, pain in the side, in asthmatic affections, and in weakness or oppression of the pulmonary organs. In spinal complaints their effects are of the most decided character, and they have often been used with complete success. They are also of the greatest advantage in pains and weakness of the breast, and are highly recommended for many of those complaints to which females are especially liable. As an effectual means for strengthening the system when debilitated with disease and other causes, as a certain aid in constitutional weakness, as a preventive for colds, and in all affections of the chest generally, the Galvanic Strengthening Plasters will be found of great and permanent advantage.

CAUTION. The celebrity and success of these articles have caused them to be counterfeited by unprincipled persons. Dr. Christie cautions the public against spurious imitations. He has but one authorized agency in each city of the Union, where the genuine articles can be procured. The only agents for Washington are—

M. H. STEVENS & EMMONS,

Nos. 1 and 2 Brown's Hotel, Penn. Avenue.

Explanatory pamphlets, &c. may be had gratis, with the strongest testimonials of success and benefit.

THE SHADED FLOWER.

BY SUSAN FINDER.

From a dark cloud's breast a rain drop fell, In a grateful summer shower;

Through the tangled leaves of the vine-clad dell,

Till it rested at last in the opening bell Of a little shaded flower.

Then the sun, looked forth, and his gladning beam,

Soon drank the shower dew up; He smiled on the mountain, the valley, and stream

But he did not kiss with his warm, bright gleam

The drop in the blossoms's cup.

'How sad is my fate!' the floweret sighed,

With the glittering weight oppress'd;

'My sisters smile in their graceful pride,

While I am condemned this load to hide

Within my trembling breast!

Then she bowed her head on her fragile stem,

And slept through the long still night;

But when she awoke, the prisoned gem

Shone like a glorious diadem

As it flashed in the morning light!

The scorching sun at the noontide hour

Looked down on the blossoms gay;

They drooped and paled 'neath his withering power.

All save the little shaded flower

And she quailed not beneath his ray.

Then to glisten afar in the rainbow's dye,

He bade the drop depart;

But the flower looked up with a trusting eye,

Though the dew no more in her breast might lie.

It had freshened the life at her heart.

And is it not thus in adversity's hour,

When the soul is with grief oppress'd?

Our spirits droop 'neath misfortune's power,

And we nurse like the little shaded flower,

A sorrow in the breast?

And may we not hope, when our grief is fled,

That a stronger faith will be given?

And the tears which our burdened hearts have shed

Shall form, when the night of gloom is sped,

A rainbow of hope in heaven?

CHOICE READING.

"If you enlighten the people, do not forget that this is but half the work. Let them be made virtuous and religious, or you leave them more exposed to danger than they were before."

THE PICKPOCKETS.

A CASE IN REAL LIFE.

'None are all evil—quickenings round his heart.

One manly feeling would not yet depart.'

We have so frequently noticed cases of individuals convicted of serious crimes, who nevertheless were not at all guilty, but possessed redeeming qualities—that we have often felt regret at the harsh judgment of the world, and at the little effort which is made to win back the misguided, the fallen, and the lost! How many might be saved by the exercise of kindness, sympathy, and encouragement, who, neglected, and denounced, soon abandon all hope, believe themselves cut off from all society and the virtuous portion of mankind, and plunge deeper and deeper into the ways of crime! How many of the poor wretches who are dragged before our criminal courts charged with petty offences, misdemeanors, thefts, and other errors of poverty, despair and intemperance; are the unfortunate children of neglect, want and bad example—have never been taught the brightness and the beauty of a better course, have never enjoyed the benefits of moral counsel and friendly advice—but have been outcast, and abandoned since early childhood! How few, too, of our philanthropists think it worth while to pay attention to these erring children of humanity, to employ counsel, or in any way to investigate the facts of their respective cases. They are doomed from the first. Conviction and sentence speedily follow their arrest, no voice is heard to plead in their behalf, no eye moistens as judgment is pronounced, and no heart softens as they are borne away in custody of the officers of the law.

Let us not be misunderstood. Crime should be punished fully and adequately. In this course is the only safety of society. But we cherish the belief that there are few at least among the youthful offenders, who are utterly hardened—who have not within the bosom some germ of virtue, who would not, if a hope were held out to them, gladly embrace it, and cheerfully turn from the error of their ways. But if one in twenty could only thus be saved! What a consolation and what a blessing would such a result be to the benevolent and the Christian.

How in after life would they look back with pleasure to their conduct, and are in the reformed, the rescued and the upright, the happy results of their efforts. There are cases, too, in which even the experienced in crime, those who have gone on from year to year, who having wandered away early, and have never been able to recover the lost track of rectitude and duty, are nevertheless not utterly undone—still retain a portion of their better nature, and cherish even amid their misdeeds, some faint glimmering of principle, of virtue, and of truth.

We may cite a case, in a neighboring city, the facts of which have been communicated to us by a gentleman of undoubted veracity. We give the incidents exactly as detailed to us, and merely substitute assumed for real names as a matter of propriety.

A highly respectable gentleman named Henderson, was robbed of his pocket book containing $500. He saw the robbers, as he supposed—two men—and pursued them. In course of a short time they separated, and he was compelled to direct his pursuits towards one. He succeeded in arresting him. He charged him with the robbery; but this the accused, Lawson, denied in the most earnest manner. He was tried, convicted, and committed to prison. While there, Mr. Henderson was waited upon by an individual of genteel appearance, who said that his name was Edwards, that he was a Jersey farmer, that he had known Lawson in his youth, and was much attached to him. He expressed a deep anxiety that he might avoid a sentence, and asked Mr. Henderson if he would assist in obtaining a release, provided Edwards would insure him a return of the whole of the money.—Henderson listened with attention, reflected for a moment, thought there was some mystery in the case, and finally agreed to meet Edwards at the office of an attorney. The interview took place accordingly, but Henderson was much struck with the altered appearance of Edwards. He seemed in many respects another man. At first he wore spectacles and whiskers, and now he was without either. He scrutinized him with close attention, and finally became convinced that the pretended farmer was one of the two pickpockets—the one who had escaped when he had pursued them.—He said he was not in Philadelphia at the time.

Henderson nevertheless persevered, satisfied in his own mind that he had made no mistake. Edwards was arrested and committed to prison. He was soon after put upon his trial, and the circumstantial evidence being very strong, he was convicted. His counsel, nevertheless, manifested great interest in his behalf, and made a strenuous effort to obtain a new trial. The matter was argued at great length before the Court, but all that could be obtained at the moment, was a postponement of the decision.
